

Ohio Infrastructure Findings

Infrastructure development is seen among registered voters as a way to boost jobs and the economy

83% of voters believe that if government and private industry were to invest in infrastructure, it would have a positive impact.

When it comes to expected outcomes from increasing our investment in infrastructure, the top two are...

-  1. Creating good-paying jobs (59%)
-  2. Boosting our economy (49%)

Greater investment in energy infrastructure has broad bipartisan support

The following groups within Ohio support increasing investment in energy infrastructure:

 89% of Republicans 84% of Democrats	 83% of Clinton voters 89% of Trump voters
 91% of union members 85% of non-union members	 88% of environmentalists

- Overall, 83% of Ohio voters believe if government and private industry were to invest in infrastructure, it would have a positive impact. This view point holds among key sub-groups:
 - 84% of Republicans and 83% of Democrats believe it will have a positive impact.
 - 85% of self-identified environmentalists believe it will have a positive impact.
 - 77% of union members and 85% of non-union members believe it will have a positive impact.
- Further, the consensus view of voters in Ohio (86%) is to support increasing our investment in our energy infrastructure, and 59% strongly support increasing our investment.
 - No less than 81% of voters from any region in Ohio support increasing our investment in energy infrastructure.
 - Better than eight-in-ten (83%) Clinton voters and 89% of Trump voters support increasing our investment in energy infrastructure.
- The overwhelming view of Ohio voters (84%) is to support increasing energy development in the U.S. This compares with just a scant handful (9%) who oppose increasing energy development.
 - Support for increasing energy development is consistent throughout the state, never falling below 73% in any region in Ohio.
 - Support transcends political party as well in that 87% of Republicans and 82% of Democrats support an increase in energy development. Fully 83% of Clinton voters and 87% of Trump voters support increasing energy development.